Efficient noncommutative polynomial optimization by exploiting sparsity

Jie Wang
LAAS-CNRS
jwang@laas.fr
Victor Magron
LAAS-CNRS
vmagron@laas.fr

Many problems arising from quantum information can be modelled as noncommutative polynomial optimization problems. The moment-SOHS hierarchy approximates the optimum of noncommutative polynomial optimization problems by solving a sequence of semidefinite programming relaxations with increasing sizes. In this talk, I will show how to exploit various sparsity patterns encoded in the problem data to improve scalability of the moment-SOHS hierarchy for eigenvalue and trace optimization problems.